"Undoing Racism shows how racism isn't bad people saying or doing bad things, but systems created to automatically give privilege and advantage to some people and disadvantage to others. It is an experience everyone should have -- it will help you understand with clarity everything from African slavery to today's influence of money in politics. This process is empowering, enlightening, and unifying, and shows how racial distinctions do not exist in nature, but only in our minds. I see everything better now due to the truths told in the Undoing Racism workshop." Christopher Jackson, JD

"The Undoing Racism training brought more clarity and focus to my professional work than any other experience I have had."

Susan Cohen Esquilin, Ph.D., Psychologist

"Racism is a disease. The Undoing Racism Workshop is the treatment!"
Deacon Ken Radcliffe
Coordinator The ISAIAH Project
The Criminal "JUST US" Committee

"The training has given me the language to put what I'm feeling into words and the courage to be human again."

Ruthie Arroyo, NJCU recent grad and former Peer Educator

"An eye-opening inclusive 2 1/2 day training to connect and go beyond limitations of our family units, careers, and belief systems. As we intersect with one another: unlearning, relearning, sharing, and healing molds a unified voice for us to speak to Racism." Shayla Cook, NJCU student, Peer Educator, Spoken Word Artist

Undoing Racism™ is an intensive 2.5 –day workshop designed to train, educate, challenge and empower people to undo the racist structures that hinder effective social change. The training is based on the premise that racism has been systematically constructed and that it can be undone when people understand where it come from, how it functions, why it is perpetuated, and what we can do to dismantle it.

The workshop is offered by the People's Institute for Survival and Beyond (www.pisab.org), a national, multiracial, anti-racist collective of veteran organizers and educators dedicated to building an effective movement for social change. Since 1980, the People's Institute has trained over 400,000 people in hundreds of communities throughout the United States and internationally. It is recognized as one of the most effective anti-racist training and organizing institutions in the nation.
